Healthy People Penn State
Penn State, University Park • October 4–7, 2017

An all expenses paid research conference and expo for juniors/seniors considering graduate school

The College of Health and Human Development and the College of Nursing at Penn State invite juniors/seniors/graduates from traditionally underrepresented groups—who have solid records of academic achievement (GPA>3.25) and are committed to research and education—to attend an all-expenses-paid conference and expo. Attendees will learn about opportunities for graduate study in these colleges whose missions include improving the health of individuals and communities as mandated in the nation’s Healthy People 2020 initiative.

Conference Activities

• One-on-one and group sessions with current graduate students and professors
• Presentations from graduate students engaged in cutting-edge research
• Visits with professors, research laboratories, and departments
• Advisory sessions on applying to graduate programs
• Group meals, tours, and social events with Penn State students and professors

Presentations

Learn about the goals of Healthy People 2020, as well as modern-day threats to health, and current research conducted in the College of Health and Human Development and the College of Nursing that is aimed at alleviating their effects, including:

• Aging processes
• Child maltreatment
• Communication and cognitive disorders
• Daily stressors
• Diabetes and obesity
• Disabilities
• Genetics
• Global health
• Health disparities and health policy
• Interpersonal relationships, parenting, child development
• Leisure and hospitality
• Nursing
• Nutrition
• Physical and recreational activity
• Risky environments and behaviors, substance abuse
• Sleep disorders

Graduate Student Life at Penn State

• What to look for in a graduate program
• Admissions, GPAs, and GREs
• Research
• Social networking
• Graduate work-life balance

All Conference Expenses Paid

• Airfare or ground transportation to and from Penn State
• Lodging and conference meal expenses

Apply Now / Additional Information

• www.hhd.psu.edu/gradexpo
• HHDGradExpo@psu.edu or 814-863-7519
• Application deadline: June 15, 2017